

Idaho Rush alum Michael Soderlund's Indiana Hoosiers won their eighth national championship with a 1-0 win over Georgetown. Soderlund was red-shirting this season and did not play in the regular season or tournament, but was on the sideline for the national championship match. He is expected to be the starting goalkeeper next year for the Hoosiers.

Indiana completed a miracle run through the NCAA tournament, defeating top-seeded Notre Dame and longtime rival North Carolina along the way. In the final, Nikita Kotlov scored in the 65th minute and solid goalkeeping from senior Luis Soffner made the lead stand up. Soffner's play during the season has earned him a spot at the MLS Combine early next year. Soderlund said his relationship with Soffner and two years of training with the Hoosiers has prepared him to take the starting role next year.

Grand Canyon University

The 'Lopes advanced to the regional finals of the NCAA Div. II national championships in dramatic fashion, beating Cal State-Los Angeles in PKs on Saturday. The Eagles kept up the pressure in extra time, forcing 'Lopes goalkeeper Josh Zehring into several good saves. Neither team could find the winner, though, and the game was settled from the penalty spot.

Freshman Yared Solcheid was the only Idaho Rush alum to play in the game, although the roster boasts five former Rush players. Yared played for about 25 minutes in the first half, about 15 minutes in the second half, and he started the first extra time period.
